Prof. Mitchell killed a man in that city last fall. He formerly lived in Paris where he had charge of the music at the skating rink in the old Christian church building. Mitchell also lived in Winchester and Mt. Sterling for some time.

Murder and Suicide.

Elbin Newby, a lumberman, shot and killed his wife and then committed suicide at Valley View, in Fayette county, Sunday morning. Mrs. Newby had been up all night with a sick child and Newby is supposed to have killed her because breakfast was not ready when he came home. Helpless neighbors across the river saw Newby kill the woman and drag her body to the house, where later they found the body of Newby and a freezing and dead child.

DEATHS.

A telegram was received Sunday night by Elder J. S. Sweeney announcing the death of the wife of his son, Dr. John Sweeney, at Chicago. Mrs. Sweeney was aged about twenty-five years, and had been in the hospital at Chicago for about ten days.

She is survived by her husband and one little son. She was a most excellent young woman and the host of friends of Dr. Sweeney in this city, extend their heartfelt sympathy to him in his bereavement.

Mrs. Sweeney was the daughter of Mr. J. E. Hampton, of Two Rivers, Wis., and was in Paris with her husband to attend the wedding of her brother, Mr. G. S. Hamilton, to Miss Margaret Sweeney.

Mrs. J. S. Sweeney and son, Mr. Edwin Sweeney, left yesterday to attend the funeral at Two Rivers, Wis., Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Mrs. Claude Linville, aged 26 years, died at her home on Fifteenth street, Sunday morning, from septicaemia. She is survived by her husband. She was an estimable young woman. The remains were taken to Carlisle, her former home, yesterday morning, where funeral services were held in the afternoon.

Mrs. Susan Jane Fryman, aged 101 years, died at her home in the extreme Easter portion of Harrison county, after a short illness Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Fryman was born in Nicholas county, Aug. 14, 1806, and has lived her entire life in the portion of Nicholas and Harrison counties which is known as "The Dark Corner."

Dr. W. H. Willett, a prominent physician, of Harrison, O., died at his home Sunday morning. He was a brother of Mr. A. Willett, of this city.

Dr. Willett was a native of Bourbon county, being a son of the late Charles Willett, a farmer residing near Hutchison.

Dr. Willett was 64 years of age, was highly esteemed, and had amassed a fortune.

THEATRICAL.

"A MESSENGER BOY."

Manager Borland, of the Paris Grand, offers for the attraction Thursday, Feb. 13, Mr. George D. Sweet, and his big company of popular favorites in the celebrated comedy drama, "A Messenger Boy" with Beatrice Terry in the leading role of Roxy, a typical type of the New York street waif of the day, whose wit and unconscious comedy, indomitable courage and natural independence pleases and serves to furnish a realistic character in a play full of human interest, varied with thrilling sensations and embellished with music and high class specialties. As a portrayer of the humorous side of life, Mr. Sweet has few equals in "A Messenger Boy." He gives us a set of characters so entwined that from those usually seen in comedies and has conceived situations that are so exquisitely funny, that although the play has a strong plot and is filled as a comedy drama, it contains more genuine comedy and elicits more hearty laughter than the funniest of farce comedies.

In speaking of the attraction the Sioux Falls, Iowa, Daily Press says: "George Sweet's play, 'A Messenger Boy,' presented at the Elks' theatre, last evening, pleased a fair audience, all the performers being of a very clever brand. In fact, the play deserved a much better house than greeted them.

"Without a doubt the band and orchestra carried by Sweet is the best heard here this season, barring none, and the orchestra's rendition of 'Poet and Peasant,' and the descriptive piece, 'A Day at the Circus' won well merited applause from the audience.

"Should Manager Sweet return next season with as excellent a company and musicians as he can be assured of a better house and a hearty welcome."

Hung Jury.

The jury in the case of Charles J. Bronston, charged with shooting at Col. W. R. Milward, in Lexington, were unable to agree and were discharged. The first vote was ten to two for acquittal and the last vote was ten to two for a $50 fine.

A Competent Mechanic.

F. R. Phillips has opened a plumbing and electrical business in the W. A. Hill building, on Main street, and solicits your work and guarantees satisfaction. He comes well recommended. Here is what some of his recommendations say:

C. S. Nield, General Manager North Jellico Coal Co., Wilton, Ky.: "Mr. Phillips was the electrician for the Wilton mine, and proved himself capable of handling an electrical plant and first-class engineer."

E. D. Turner, of the Osgood, Ind., Light Co.: "Mr. Phillips superintended the construction of our entire light plant, and gave us a plant second to none and saved us money."

Mr. Phillips also has a firstclass stationary engineer's license.

To the Ministers of the United States.

We enclose copy of our suggestions as to a Model License Law for the retail liquor business, and in view of the fact that the ministers has so great a responsibility to do with the development of public sentiment, we ask that you give to this matter your earnest and unprejudiced consideration.

We believe that the saloons of the country should obey all laws on the statute books, but we do not believe in the prejudice or the practicability of prohibitory legislation. We also believe that the saloon keeper should retire from politics as an aggressive factor.

In offering this Model License Law, and we do so in good faith, we insist that under its operation the one desire of the retail liquor dealer would be to obey all laws, and, furthermore, that it would have the effect of removing the saloon keeper, as a saloon keeper, from the political arena, permanently. The status of the saloon at the present time, however, is wrong, and it is unreasonable to expect the saloon keeper to remain out of politics as long as his fate each year, as a business man, remains in the hands of a judge, or a licensing board, or a political boss. Furthermore, the saloon keeper will always violate law if he finds great profit in the violation of the law.

We all know that laws are violated by trusts and combinations and railroads, and by good citizens generally, when the profits are large and the penalties are small. When investigations are made in regard to the affairs of great municipalities, it is generally found that franchises have been stolen, and legislatures and councils have been bribed by corporations owned by "the most respectable citizens." Most of these citizens belong to churches and stand high in society, but they will violate the law when it pays or when it seems to pay.

The saloon keeper will do the same, and the purpose of the Model License Law is to make it profitable to obey rather than to violate law. A license that renews itself, and that can only be canceled by an act of the saloon keeper, and which is only issued in the proportion of one for each 500 of population, will become very valuable, and, of course, the saloon keeper will do everything in his power to preserve it, and if the penalty is made mandatory—that is, if all discretion is taken away from the judges—and if the first violation of law suspends the license and the second cancels it, the saloon keeper will then be, of all persons, most anxious to obey law.

We do not offer this law as a substitute exactly for prohibition—that is, it is not intended to interfere with the passage of prohibitory laws if the people so desire them—but it is intended to bring about obedience to law where the business is licensed.

We are free to say that we do not think much of the prohibitory laws that are being passed in this country, because they merely prohibit the manufacture and sale, and do not prohibit the purchase and use, and all thinking men, know that where a demand exists, it will be supplied from some source if the profit justifies the risk in supplying it. Therefore, these prohibitory laws merely alter the channels of supply—that is, they destroy the channels that pay revenue to the State, county and city, and they confiscate a lot of property invested under the sanction of law, and that without compensation but they do not stop the use or abuse of alcoholic beverages, as witness the tremendous development of the mail order business and of the moonshine business, and as witness the figures of the Internal Revenue Department which shows that the per capita consumption of whisky has not decreased with the spread of prohibition, and the per capita consumption of beer has largely increased.

If the Anti-Saloon League will agree to this, we will favor having an amendment to all prohibitory laws providing a heavy penalty for the purchase of alcoholic beverages, or for having them in possession in prohibition territory, and this would mean prohibition, but we certainly think that sensible people should hesitate about destroying millions and millions of property, and then supply their wants (insofar as alcoholic beverages are concerned) from other sources.

The passage of laws will not prevent the use of alcoholic beverages; that is a matter of education and of evolution; and when we consider that there is scarcely a family in this country that does not keep whisky, wine, beer or some one of the many so-called medications, on hand, and when we remember that those who vote for prohibition expect to continue to keep their favorite alcoholic beverages on hand, it seems to us that we should recognize the fact that prohibition must inevitably fail except insofar as the destruction of property and revenue is concerned.

We would like to call your attention to what we think is a very serious phase of this question. The Anti-Saloon League is taking the ground that the manufacture of alcoholic beverages is wrong per se, and that those who make them, or give them to others, are committing a sin or setting a bad example.

If this be true, then there is no question that the Almighty was wrong in commanding the use of wine in speaking to His chosen people, and Christ was wrong in making wine at the Feast of Galilee when He could have turned water into wine as easily as He turned water into wine, and He was wrong in selecting bread and wine to commemorate His death.

That the wine that Christ made was intoxicating is beyond question, because wine is the fermented juice of the grape and fermentation produces alcohol, and alcohol intoxicates. Fermented grape juice, where the fermentation is arrested by salicylic acid or by the Pasteurizing process, is not wine, and we do not suppose that there was any way known for arresting fermentation at the time of Christ.

That this wine was fermented is also shown by the statement of Christ that new wine should not be put into old bottles. The bottles used in Palestine were made of leather, and the fermentation of the new wine would break an old bottle. St. Paul, in 1st Timothy, 3:8-8, Titus, 1:7, and 2:3, and Ephesians, 5:18, intimates, we think, that the wine used at that time was intoxicating. The same intimation is made in 1st Peter, 4:3 and in 1st Corinthians, 11:17-20.

Now if the Anti-Saloon League, in its effort to establish prohibition that does not and cannot prohibit, proves to the satisfaction of the American people that Christ did that which was wrong, that Christ committed a sin, and that Christ set a bad example to future generations, then we fear that the Anti-Saloon League will have succeeded. (Insofar as the American people are concerned,) in destroying the very foundation of the Christian.

The great infidels of the past stood helpless before the character of Christ, and all of them agreed that it was faultless, but the Kentucky issue, which represents the Anti-Saloon League in this State, says that Christ's example is not the Christian rule of conduct, and the Anti-Saloon League, in our opinion, is wrong.

Yours truly,

Namoto's
"Blacking."

By LULU JOHNSON.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

Silently the Japanese boy placed the tray on the table and waited, siphon in hand, to fill the glasses. This ceremony performed, he retired noiselessly to the little niche dignified by the name of dining room.

"I hope there is no war with Japan," said Mosby. "What would a poor bachelor do if all the Jap boys had to go home to fight for their country?"

"I should hate to lose Namoto," repeated Ned Bowen, "though I hope to be married long before there is a chance of a war."

"I speak for Namoto," said Mosby quickly. "If the happy event comes to pass I want you to let me have him. He is a paragon even among Jap boys." "Don't count your chickens before they are hatched," warned Bowen darkly. "Hank Sturgis is invited out to Bayport, too, and—"

"And it's nip and tuck between you two for Bessie Ricaby," completed Mosby. "What's the matter with kidnaping Hank? You might lock him up in these rooms with Namoto to guard him and go ahead with plain sailing."

"That's a little too strenuous," laughed Bowen, "but I tell you, old man, I wish I dared. If I could get Hank out of the way over Sunday I should stand a far better chance. With the two of us always trying to best the other man there is no chance for either."

"Well, here's hoping that you win," toasted Mosby, draining his glass. "Let's go over to the club and have a game of billiards."

The two men left the snug bachelor apartment and in the game forgot their conversation. Saturday Bowen took his suit case and made for the train. He looked all around, but there was no trace of Sturgis. Until the last moment Bowen hung about the gate, but his rival did not put in an appearance, and Bowen gritted his teeth. Probably Sturgis had taken the

Cosy Opera Glasses.

Mr. Slinger, of sewing machine fame, paid $60,000 for a pair of opera glasses. The lenses are, of course, the best obtainable, but it was the fact that the "glasses" were of solid gold, surrounded by a lyre incrusted with diamonds and sapphires, that accounted for the price.

Mail Subscribers Must Pay in Advance.

The United States Postoffice Department has issued an order, No. 907, dated December 4, 1907, amending the postal regulations, which will hereafter compel newspapers to enforce business principles in their circulation department and probably reduce the press-room waste that has cut some figure in the recent 50 per cent. advance in the price of white paper.

The new order is intended to reduce the volume of second-class mail matter made up of newspapers and magazines, which the government now carries at one cent a pound, entailing a big annual loss to the postoffice department.

It practically limits the use of the mails at these cheap postage rates to papers sent to bona-fide subscribers, paid in advance, and publishers will be fined four cents for every pound of mail sent out in violation of the regulations.

In order that the new rule may not be harsh in its application, the postoffice department has provided that a reasonable time shall be allowed to publishers to secure renewals of subscriptions before cutting off subscribers whose time has expired or who are in arrears. This time allowed is fixed at months 3 for daily papers, for 9 months for semi-weekly papers, and four months for monthly magazines.

Under the operation of this rule publishers will find an amount equal to the transcent postage rates, four cents a pound, for every daily newspaper sent to a subscriber over three months in arrears and for every semi-weekly newspaper sent to a subscriber nine months in arrears.

Publishers generally will, we believe, be glad that this regulation has been made by the Postoffice Department, as it will effectively settle the question whether mail subscribers should be cut off at the expiration of their subscriptions. In the past it often happened that subscribers who were carried over the time for which they had paid complained because they were not discontinued, while others who were promptly cut off at expiration took offense and felt that this was an imputation on their honesty or ability to pay.

The new regulation establishes for the future business-like custom that it is fair to publishers and subscribers, by the former in sending papers and bills to people who wished to discontinue and by the latter in accepting and reading papers and then refusing to pay for the ground that the subscription had expired.

In compliance with the new law we will at once send out bills and renewal notices to all mail subscribers who may be in arrears, and hopes to have prompt responses in order that there may be no violation on our part.

In the past we have never used these columns to urge payment of subscriptions or arrears, leaving such business details to the circulation department, but we believe the new postal regulations, requiring that all subscribers be cut off if nine months in arrears, on penalty of forfeiture of second-class postage privileges, justify this explanation, which will be run in several issues in order that all our mail subscribers may understand the new order of things.

"LOOK HERE!" CALLED BOWEN, "YOU HAVE MADE A MISTAKE."

morning train. If he had had the long afternoon with Bessie Ricaby, there was no telling what the outcome had been.

Bowen fretted over a magazine in the cafe car, chewing nervously on his cigar and chafing at the slowness of the train. They were on time as they pulled into Bayport, but to Bowen it seemed hours late. His host, Mr. Morton, was waiting for him with a trap, and as Bowen started toward the carriage Norton laid a hand upon his arm.

"Hold on, old man," he said. "Sturgis should be on this train."

Bowen's spirits rose. Then Sturgis had not come down on the earlier train, after all. He was ahead of his rival.

"Possibly he is detained in town," Bowen said. "I know that he is not on this train, because I looked for him. He said he was coming down."

"Maybe he is coming in his motor," suggested the host, and Bowen's spirits fell again. There was no other train until morning, and with the train of the evening without interference he might hope to gain Bess' affections.

But Sturgis did not turn up in his motor in time for dinner, nor did any message come. The party broke up in groups and pairs, and Bowen, to his great delight, found himself walking toward the shore with Bess.

It was a moonlight night, and as they watched the beams glint upon the water Bowen poured out the story of his love. The world seemed to stand still as he heard the murmured "Yes," and for the first time in the two years that he had loved Bess Ricaby he felt certain of himself.

It had been a lively war between himself and Sturgis, a constant struggle for the one to offset the other and gain an individual advantage. Now he had won, and as they retraced their steps toward the house he could afford to feel almost sorry for his absent rival.

Sunday was a long, delightful day, but it came to an end, like all good times. He must leave on an early train in the morning and would not see Bess before going, but she was to run up to town in the midweek and select the ring that should be the outward symbol of their love.

It was with a light heart that he seated himself in the train and spread open the morning paper. Almost the first thing that he saw was a black type head in which Sturgis' name was mentioned. He read it eagerly.

News had been dull the day before, and the editors had made the most of the sensational abduction of the well known clubman. The account was padded to two columns, but the leading facts were easily grasped. Sturgis had been waylaid on his way home on Friday evening. A cloth thrown over his head had prevented his seeing his captors, and after he had been hustled into a cab he remembered no more until he came to his senses in a police station forty-eight hours later.

One of the park policemen had found him sitting on a bench near a secluded drive and had come to the prompt conclusion that the man was intoxicated. When the application of the night stick to the soles of his feet failed in its usual effect an ambulance had been called and the man was removed to the police station, where the surgeon had quickly brought him to consciousness, pronouncing the case one of opium poisoning.

A suggestion was offered that perhaps visit to Chinatown had been followed by overindulgence in opium smoking, but Sturgis declared that he had never been in the Chinese quarter, but was on his way to his apartments after an evening at the club. He had not had a very large sum of money on his person, nor was it his custom to carry large amounts at any time, so that if the object was robbery the abductors had fared but badly.

The afternoon papers advanced a new theory based upon Sturgis' slight resemblance to the head of a large trust company. It was argued that he might have been mistaken for the banker, and that it was the idea of the abductors to hold the man for ransom.

Discovering their error, they had taken the few dollars found in his clothes and had turned him loose in the park. Sturgis was the center of attraction at the club that evening, and Bowen was one of those who listened to his story. It was late when he let himself into his apartment, but Namoto was up awaiting him.

"You had a nice time?" he asked when Bowen was established by the window for his good night cigar.

"Fine," said Bowen, wondering at the question.

"You will be married soon?" demanded Namoto.

Bowen stared. What could Namoto know about Bess? Then he remembered his conversation with Mosby. Namoto, in the adjoining room, must have heard them. He was so inobtrusive that Bowen had forgotten his presence.

"I will be married in the fall," said Bowen. "Mr. Mosby wants you to go to him then."

"I got housekeeping account," said Namoto irrelevantly, presenting a slip of paper. It was their custom to have a settlement every Monday.

"Look here!" called Bowen. "You have made a mistake. You have charged the rent to blacking."

"I have not paid the rent," said Namoto. "I bought blacking."

"Two hundred dollars' worth of blacking?" gasped Bowen. Namoto nodded.

"Two hundred dollars," he assured, "Chinese blacking. Very good blacking indeed."

The stolid face did not change in expression as Bowen stared, and Namoto repeated the explanation. Bowen gasped. Namoto had also overheard his wish that Sturgis should not be at Bayport over Sunday and had engaged a Chinese tong to abduct Sturgis.

Gravely Bowen counted out the required sum and added another hundred.

"It was well done," he said gravely, "but buy no more blacking."

Namoto refilled Bowen's empty glass. "No more will be needed," he said placidly. "I am glad you approve."

Bowen stared after the retreating form. "Gee," he whispered to himself. "I'm glad I didn't tell Mosby that I wished that Sturgis was dead."

Press Freedom.

"Well," said the editor of the provincial paper, "of course the freedom of the press is a great privilege for the people, but it has some rather startling aspects sometimes."

"No doubt," said the listener encouragingly.

"It has indeed," said the other. "Only this morning, for instance, I happened to be in the publishing office, the publisher having gone out to do a paper-hanging job to help eke out the salary I owe him, when a tramp came in. He was a picturesque looking rascal, with a gleam of impudent fun in his eyes."

"'Oho, guy'nor,'" he said. "Is this the Free Press office?"

"It is, my man," said I. "What can we do for you?"

"Well, I want you to press creases into my trousers. They're gone out of shape. Got a room where I can wait?"—London Academy.

"Useful Any Time.

Jeweler—You say you want some name engraved on this ring?

Young Man—Yes; I want the words "George, to His Dearest Alice," engraved on the inside of the ring.

"Is the young lady your sister?"

"No; she is the young lady to whom I am engaged."

"Well, if I were you I would not have 'George, to His Dearest Alice,' engraved on the ring. If Alice changes her mind you can't use the ring again."

"What would you suggest?"

"I would suggest that the words be 'George, to His First and Only Love.' You see, with that inscription, you can use the ring half a dozen times. I have had experience in such matters myself."—Philadelphia Inquirer

The Cause of Hargis' Killing.

That Beach Hargis was nursing a grievance against his father, which caused him to take his life Thursday, besides being inflamed by liquor, had gone to him to assert his independence is believed by both friends and enemies of Jim Hargis at Jackson. For years Beech has been a constant source of trouble to his father, who, to use the expression of a member of the anti-Hargis faction, "certainly tried to do right by that boy."

The most serious trouble between the two, and the probable cause of Thursday's tragedy, occurred a week ago when Beech, on a spree, drew a pistol at home and badly frightened his mother.

Judge Hargis, coming in, knocked the boy down and, it is said, loosened several of his teeth and cut his face badly. The Judge, it is reported, gave Beech a terrible trashing and punished him so severely that Mrs. Hargis went out to call for some men to separate the father and son, when Judge Hargis made up his mind that Beech had enough and quit.

Beech is said to have frankly told on the streets of Jackson how his face came to be bruised and to have said he didn't allow any man, even his father, to beat him that way again.

It is said that if the boy is vigorously prosecuted it is probable that the officer's of the law will have to conduct the case on their own initiative and without assistance from the family of the murdered man. How close the ties of blood bind in the mountains is hard for an outsider to understand. The clan spirit is unconquerable, and no matter what a man may do, when attacked his blood relatives rally to his support. Men in Jackson have no doubt that when the case comes to trial Beech Hargis, having succeeded his father as the head of the family will find behind him his mother, his sister, and his mother's family, the Days. On the other hand, they believe that though Alex Hargis went into the Hargis store Thursday for the first time in three months, he and his brother, Elbert, will try to see Beech punished by law. This they believe, in spite of the fact that Alex Hargis declared that his hands were washed of the affair and the law might take its course without help or hinderance from him.

One of the last acts of Jim Hargis' life was to call L. T. Hovermale, editor of the Jackson Democrat, into his store and give him the order to print a large number of shipping tags, with the words "Hargis Bros." replaced by his name, James Hargis.

Alex Hargis went to his brother's side when he learned that he had been shot, but it is said that he did not go to the house where the body was carried. The funeral services were held Saturday at the old Hargis homestead, about a mile from Jackson, conducted by Rev. Calloway Cooper, a life-long friend, and minister of the Baptist church.

MARGOLEN.

Here's Trouble.

As though our Republican friends were not having trouble enough, J. B. Tridle, of Spaulding, Neb., writing to the Omaha World-Herald gives them this nut to crack:

"I would like to ask one question of my Republican friends: If Grover Cleveland was buried in the political grave of oblivion for issuing fifty millions of interest bearing debt when he had but one hundred and sixty-four million of gold in the treasury, where shall we bury Theodore Roosevelt when he issued seventy-five millions with nine hundred and thirty-three millions of gold in the treasury? My Republican friends, please tell me where, oh, where."

One Result.

One result of the financial stringency and the consequent throwing out of employment so many men, is the great increase in the enlistments for army and navy service. For the past few years work has been so easy to obtain and wages so much better than the pay in the army, that desertions have been very common and the few enlistments hardly covered the loss from desertions. Now so many men are out of work that enlistments have greatly increased and the skeleton regiments are being rapidly filled out.

OVER TWO THOUSAND VISITORS A DAY

Cooper Explains Reason for Remarkable Average of Boston Callers.

During L. T. Cooper's recent stay in Boston, it is estimated that sixty-five thousand people talked with him and purchased his medicine. This is an average of over two thousand a day.

His success was so phenomenal as to cause universal comment both by the public and the press. There must be a reason for this. Here is the reason given in his own words by Mr. Cooper when interviewed on the subject. He said:

"The immense numbers of people who are calling on me here in Boston is not unusual. I have had the same experience for the past two years wherever I have gone. The reason is a simple one. It is because my medicine puts the stomach in good condition. This does not sound unusual, but it is in fact the key to health. The stomach is the very foundation of life. I attribute 90 per cent. of all sickness directly to the stomach."

"Neither animals nor men can remain well with a poor digestive apparatus. Few can be sick with a digestion in perfect condition. As a matter of fact, most men and women today are half-sick. It is because too much food and too little exercise have gradually forced the stomach into a half-sick condition. My medicine gets the stomach back where it was, and that is all that is necessary."

Among Boston people who are staunch believers in Mr. Cooper's theory, is Mr. Frank D. Brown, of 97

Bloomingdale street, Chelsea, Mass. He says:

"For five years I have sought relief for indigestion, stomach trouble and dyspepsia, spending nearly all my wages with doctors and obtaining no results. I had dull pains across my back, radiating to the shoulders. I had splitting headaches, which nothing seemed to cure. There was a gnawing and rumbling in my stomach and bowels. I was troubled with vertigo and dizziness, and at times almost overcome by drowsiness."

"I felt tired and worn out all the time, my sleep was not refreshing, and I would get up in the morning feeling as weary as when I went to bed. My appetite was variable—ravenous at times, then again nauseated at the sight of food. Sometimes my face was pale, at other times flushed. I was constipated and bilious, and had catarrhal affection in nose and throat, which caused me to hawk and spit a great deal, especially in the morning. I heard so much of the Cooper remedies that I decided to try them. After taking one bottle, a tapeworm 50 feet long passed from my system. I felt better almost immediately. All my troubles disappeared as if by magic, and my improvement was rapid. I now feel entirely well, and can honestly recommend Mr. Cooper's medicine to anyone who suffers as I did."

We sell the Cooper medicines which give universal satisfaction. Geo. S. Varden & Son.

Many Sleepless Nights, Owing to a Persistent Cough. Relief Found at Last.

"For several winters past my wife has been troubled with a most persistent and disagreeable cough, which invariably extended over a period of several weeks and caused her many sleepless nights," writes Will J. Hayner, editor of the Burley, Colo., Bulletin. "Various remedies were tried each year, with no beneficial results. In November last the cough again put in an appearance and my wife, acting on the suggestion of a friend, purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The result was indeed marvelous. After three doses the cough entirely disappeared and has not manifested itself since." This remedy is for sale by W. T. Brooks. You need no other guarantee.

THE GANGES.

Ancient Legends of the Sacred River of the Hindoos.

From an icy cavern at the foot of a Himalayan snow bed more than 10,000 feet above the level of the sea issues a small stream which becomes the mighty Ganges, flowing for 1,500 miles through India to the bay of Bengal, and of whose course every foot is hilly ground.

With Mother Ganga, as the pious Hindoos reverently call her, no river on earth can compare in sanctity.

The old poem tells us that the heavily Ganges flowed from the toe of Vishnu and was brought down from heaven by the prayers of the saint Bhagirath to purify the ashes of the 60,000 sons of King Sagara, who had been burnt by the angry glances of the sage Kapila.

Ganga was angry at being brought down from heaven, and to save the earth from her impetuous rush Siva caught the river on his liver and with his matted locks checked its course.

The legends go on to tell how the descent of the Ganges disturbed the sage Jabam in the performance of his religious duties, whereupon in his rage he drank up the river, but subsequently relented and permitted it to flow from his ear.—Pearson's Weekly.

END OF THE WORLD.

One Scientific Theory of How Our Planet May Perish.

A scientific forecast of how the end of the world might come has been given by Professor Elard Gore. His theory is that final catastrophe may possibly be the result of a collision between the sun and some dark, dead, derelict planet.

Although astronomers have no actual proof that such dead suns exist, without life or light and careering about in space, they believe it quite possible. The result of a collision between the sun and a dark planet would be that the former's light and heat would be enormously increased and the earth instantly destroyed by combustion.

Professor Gore tells how we should be warned of our approaching doom. "When about 15,000,000 miles from the sun, the dark body would begin to shine by reflected light. In about ten years it would have become so bright as to be visible to the naked eye. In fifteen years it would be brighter than any object except the moon. Very soon afterward would come the great catastrophe of its collision, moving at 400 miles a second, with the sun moving at the same speed."—Dundee Observer.

One of the first tasks they set the new curate, who was handicapped by youth and inexperience, was to investigate the bona fides of a "widow woman" who had applied to the church for help. He departed nervously on his errand and knocked, as ill luck would have it, at the wrong door.

"How long has your poor husband been dead, my good woman? What number of children have you? Are any of them working? If so, what amount of money are they earning altogether?" were the questions he fired, like shots from a revolver, at the slatternly woman who answered his summons. "I presume I am addressing Mrs. Harriet Smith?" he added, nothing with alarm that she looked angry.

"No, you ain't," answered the woman snappishly. "My name is Selina Jackson, my bairns go to school and my husband's doh' what is necessary to a plateful of steak and onions at this very moment. Would you like to know anything else? Where I was born? When I was baptized? At what age I started courtin'? Perhaps," she concluded sarcastically, rolling her tattered sleeve up above the elbow, "you'd like to see my vaccination mark before you go?"

But the bashful curate was already in full flight.—Liverpool Mercury.

Long Men Wanted.

The records in the war department in Washington are as a rule very dry, but occasionally an entry is found that is humorous.

An officer of engineers in charge of the construction of a road that was to be built through a swamp, being energetic himself and used to surmounting obstacles, was surprised when one of his young lieutenants whom he had ordered to take twenty men and enter the swamp said that he could not do it—the mud was too deep.

The colonel ordered him to try. He did so and returned with his men covered with mud.

"Colonel, the mud is over my men's heads. I can't do it."

The colonel insisted and told him to make a requisition for anything that was necessary for a safe passage.

The lieutenant made his requisition in writing and on the spot. It was as follows:

"I want twenty men eighteen feet long to cross a swamp fifteen feet deep."—Harper's Weekly.

A Simple Recipe.
Everybody in Cedarby owned that Mrs. Hanson was the queen of cooks, but they were likely to add that when it came to explaining the processes by which she arrived at her excellent results she left a good deal to be desired.

"Your scalloped oysters are the best we ever have at our church suppers or anywhere, and you know it," said a neighbor, endeavoring to win special favor from this culinary goddess. "Most folks get 'em either too wet or too dry.
I tell 'em I don't know how you manage it so yours are always just right.
I don't suppose you could tell exactly yourself."

"Why, yes, I could," and Mrs. Hanson smiled indulgently at the eager, hopeful face of her neighbor. "All I do is butter the dish, put in a layer of oysters, salted and peppered, then a layer of buttered crumbs, then a layer of milk and back to oysters again.
Easy as pie, 'tis."

"A 'layer' of milk?" faltered the neighbor.

"Why, yes," said Mrs. Hanson cheerfully. "That's what makes 'em about right—layer of oysters, layer of crumbs and layer of milk. Leastways that's what I do, and you say you like
'em."—Youth's Companion.

A Welsh Sermon.

The Welsh are noted for their fondness for sermons and music. The annual eisteddfod, the national bardic congress, is attended by thousands, who on the great day of festival
"chair" the fortunate bard, the winner of the prize.

A similar enthusiasm greets the Welsh preacher who is eloquent in speech and practical in expounding the Scriptures. The following story of a Welsh preacher, told in the "Journals of Walter White," illustrates the graphic, simple exposition which commanded the attention of the congregation:

"Noe worked at the ark, driving nails, plump, plump, plump. The hay-then came and said: 'Noe, there's good hunting in the woods here, hares and foxes. Leave your work and come and hunt.' But Noe kept on hammering, plump, plump, plump.

"The haythen came again: 'Noe,
there's good beer at the Red Lion.
Leave your work and come and drink.'
But Noe kept on hammering, plump, plump, plump. And then the rain came, and the flood lifted up the ark and carried Noe away and left the haythen all screaming and squabbling in the water."

Hats That Improve With Age.

"A silk hat, like wine, improves with age," said a clubman. "The oftener you have it ironed the sleeker and more brilliant it becomes. It costs a good deal at the outset, but in the end it is the cheapest hat to wear. It lasts, you see, so long, and to iron it costs
so little. Some folks think the topper very perishable. If it gets soaked with rain, if some one sits on it and crushes it into an accordion, they think it must be thrown away the same as if it were a derby. But not at all. A silk hat can be taken apart and put together again like a watch, and if it gets crushed nothing is easier than to melt off the silk, straighten out the frame and then put on the silk again.
In England, the home of this hat, I have known men to wear the same topper for ten or twelve years. And the oftener the old hat is ironed the brighter and finer it shines. Its luster increases with time and friction like the luster of good antique furniture."

Anatomy of a Violin.

Taken to pieces a violin would be found to consist of the following parts: Back, 2 pieces; belly, 2; colins and blocks, 6; sides, 5; side linings, 12; bar, 1; purflings, 24; neck, 1; finger board, 1; nut, 1; bridge, 1; tailboard, 1; button for tailboard, 1; string for tailboard, 1; guard for string, 1; sound post, 1; strings, 4; pegs, 4; total, 69.
Three kinds of wood are used—maple, pine and ebony. Maple is used for the back, the neck, the side pieces and the bridge. Pine is used for the belly, the bar, the coins and blocks, the side linings and the sounding post. Ebony is used for the finger board, the tail-board, the nut, the guard for string of tailboard, the pegs and the button.

An English Fling.

"High banks, sir?" remarked an American contemptuously. "Why, in England you don't know what height is.
Last time I was in New York it was a blazing hot day, and I saw a man coming out of a lift wrapped up from top to toe in bearskins, and I said to him, 'Why are you muffled up on a broiling day like this?' 'Waal,' he said, 'you see, I live at the top of the buildin', and it's so high that it's covered with snow all the year round!'"—
London Mail.

The Innocent.

Plaisantin offered in payment of a bill a gold piece which had a suspicious ring. "Here, you've given me one of those fake coins that the counterfeiters have just been arrested for makin'-" said the merchant. "Impossible," answered Plaisantin. "It is dated 1863. If it were false surely it would have been found out before this."

Not a Plunger.

"This scheme of mine," said the promoter, "will make you rich."

"Maybe," said the plump, easy going man. "But if I had the money necessary to take the chance I'd feel so rich that there would be no need of going any further."—Washington Star.

Is Your Boy or Girl

Thin or Nervous?

Parents do not seem to realize the great importance of curing nervousness in their children. They call in a doctor for a cough or a cold, but nervousness does not strike them as being serious enough. It is. A thin, nervous child rarely develops into a strong, healthy man or woman. More often nervous conditions become chronic and the child becomes a life-long, delicate, nervous invalid.

You can positively cure nervousness in your child with

R. M. CALDWELL.

—Our town was considerably shaken up Thursday at noon by the appearance of a mad dog on the streets. It was at the time when most of the business men were going to dinner and had it not been for the warning in time Mr. T. E. Savage would have in all probability been bitten by it. When first seen it was near the bridge coming from toward Paris. It was very muddy with mouth wide open and frothing, it went the full length of town on the sidewalk and bit the valuable bird dog of Mr. C. D. Tackett, and the dog belonging to the little Hawes boys. Mr. T. E. Savage was on the sidewalk near the Presbyterian church and succeeded in getting out of the way in time to let the dog pass. Mr. J. H. Layville was telephoned to, and at once killed it in front of the residence of Mr. R. L. Willson. The Hawes dog was killed Friday afternoon.

Dr. Wm. J. Best Dies Suddenly. [From the Winchester, Va., Evening Star, Feb. 6.]

A host of friends and life-long associates in Winchester and Frederick county were shocked and much grieved last evening at the announcement of the sudden death of Dr. William Janney Best, one of the most widely-known physicians of this section, which occurred at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his residence at Brucetown, six miles north of Winchester.

For some time past Dr. Best has not been strong, but was able to attend to his professional duties. Only last week he was in Winchester, and while he appeared somewhat feeble, he enjoyed the company of many of his friends, who were always glad to see him, and the news of his death came as a severe blow to all who had the pleasure of his acquaintance.

During the present severe and cold weather Dr. Best has been kept quite busy responding to calls of patients, and notwithstanding his failing health he was able to make a professional visit about noon yesterday, driving through the blinding snowstorm to and from the houses for several patients.

Upon returning home, he remarked to members of his family that he was about given out and after eating a lunch he said he would go out and attend to some chores on the premises, but just as he was about to rise from his chair his head fell back, dying almost instantly. Mrs. Best and daughter, Mrs. M. B. Hesseltine, were in the house at the time, but the suddenness of death was so quick that they were wholly unprepared for the shock.

Dr. Best was born in Loudoun county, Va., on August 6, 1834. He began the study of medicine under his uncle, Dr. Josiah Janney, in Clark county, and was graduated from the University of Maryland in 1856, shortly after which he began the practice of his profession at White Hall this county. Later he removed to Wadesville, Clarke county, where he took up the practice left open by the death of Dr. Janney, and had been in this community ever since, practicing in Frederick, Clarke and Berkeley counties.

He was one who took a great deal of pride in his work, doing an unusual amount of charity work, and was very successful physician, having been considered especially skillful in typhoid fever and pneumonia. He will be greatly missed by many of the old people of the county who had learned to trust him, as a physician, as they did in no other.

On November 24, 1859, Dr. Best married Miss Frances E. Jefferson, of Frederick county, and to this union several children were born, of whom the following survive: Mrs. M. B. Hesseltine, of Brucetown; Major C. M. Best, principal of a large military academy at Millersburg, Ky.; Mr. Frank J. Best, a prominent railroad official at Oklahora, City, Oklahoma, and Mrs. R. J. Yates, of Falls church, Va.

Arrangements for Dr. Best's funeral have not been completed up to a late hour this afternoon, and final arrangements will not be made until the arrival of his sons. Due notice, however, of the obsequies will be given.

A prominent Winchester man, while lamenting the death of Dr. Best today, recalled the fact that he was the last member of the commission appointed under the old Underwood constitution which divided county into magisterial districts soon after the Civil War. The other members of the commission were the late Mr. Jacob B. Larrick, father of Mr. Herbert S. Larrick and Mrs. James Faulconer, of this city, and the late Mr. Edwin Baker, father of Mr. Julian W. Baker, of the county.

At that time Winchester was still occupied by Federal troops and there were a great many Union sympathizers living in the town and county. The commission's intention to name one of the district "Stonewall" — after the noted Confederate general — became known, and there were many protests from Union people living in that part of the county which was to be so named.

The decision of the commission was, however, carried out in the face of the Federal troops, and today Stonewall district is one of the most prosperous in the county. Dr. Best resided in that district during the entire time spent in this county, and was for many years the magistrate. The other county districts are Shawnee, Opequon, Back Creek and Gainesboro.

Good Move.

Senator R. L. Hubble, of Boyle county, has new bill in the hopper at Frankfort to regulate express companies and to place them under the control and supervision of the railroad commission of the State. Now this is certainly a move in the right direction. If there is any one thing in the State that needs regulating it is the express companies, and it is to be hoped that Senator Hubble's bill will become a law, and if it does it will make the general Senator quite renowned.

The Sullivan School Bill.

The House Committee on Education, No. 1, Friday night voted to report favorably the Sullivan bill allowing women the right of suffrage on school questions. It seems probable that later the measure will encounter considerable opposition in the House, but the leaders on both sides of the assembly believe the bill will pass by a safe majority.

Iowa for Bryan.

A resolution indorsing William J. Bryan was unanimously adopted by the Iowa Democratic State Central Committee and notice of its adoption sent by wire to Mr. Bryan. The committee determined upon March 26 as the date of the State convention to select national delegate.

Fairbanks Wants Kentucky.

Fairbanks men are going to make a fight to carry Kentucky for the Vice President, and to this end they have an organization that is well modeled. Thurman Dixon, of Allen county, is one of the Fairbanks men who is a member of the General Assembly, and he is much interested in the success of the Indiana man. He believes that there will be no trouble about carrying Kentucky for Fairbanks.

New Weather Bureau.

Through the agency of Congressman D. C. Edward, the mountains of Kentucky are to have a Weather Bureau at Burnside, Ky.

One of the chiefs of the Department of Agriculture was in Burnside last week, and it is apparent that the people of Southeastern Kentucky no longer will have to rely on the report from Louisville.

Decided Against City.

Judge James M. Benton, of the Circuit Court in session at Richmond, Thursday, handed down a decision against the Richmond city council's ordinance recently passed requiring the merchants and various lines of professions to pay a special license in order to make up a deficit of about $5,000 caused by the voting out of twelve saloons in July, in 1907.

The council will either take an appeal or revise their ordinance in harmony with Judge Benton's decision. The merchants were represented by W. R. Shackelford, while the council was represented by W. S. Moberly and City Attorney T. H. Collins.
